Associated Press

LONDON — Recognizing it is in serious political trouble, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government has moved to blunt the impact of its unpopular new local government tax.

But even though the so-called poll tax has provoked protest and a demonstration that turned into a riot Saturday, the government shows no sign of backing down.

Instead, Mrs. Thatcher is taking a gamble that she can make the tax palatable by the mid-1992 deadline for the next election. And that, even the aides acknowledge, is an uncertain prospect.

The tax that took effect April 1 averages $592 a person a year, about a third higher than the government target. It must be paid by most of the 11 million adult Britons. Previously, only some 12 million property owners paid local government taxes.

On Tuesday, Environment Secretary Chris Patten ordered 20 high-spending local authorities to impose lower taxes and cut their budgets for the current fiscal year. He said the move would reduce the bills of 4 million people by $50-$160 a year.

But the immediate effect of Patten's "capping" on the high-spenders was to exacerbate the controversy.

The opposition Labor Party was angered that no authorities ruled by Thatcher's Conservative Party were on the list.

The targeted authorities claimed they would have to cut services and increase the government of being vindictive. Some threatened to fight the measure in court.

Striking steel workers willing to negotiate

Approximately 200 United Steel Workers of America members continued the fourth day of a strike at Pacific States Cast Iron Pipe Co. on Wednesday, after the current contract expired at midnight.

On Wednesday, said the president of the steel worker's union.

Joe Selman, president of Local 1654, said there were no official negotiations taking place between the union and Pacific States as of Wednesday, but added the union was more than willing to start the negotiation process.

Company officials have refused to comment on reports that Pacific States intended to operate the plant with management and salaried personnel, but union members at the plant said Pacific States had produced pipe both Tuesday and Wednesday with help brought in from outside the Provo plant.

Talks halted Friday night between the company and representatives of the union's Local 1654. Union members voted unanimously on Saturday to reject the company's offer and authorized the strike.

When the union's contract with Pacific States expired Saturday, union leaders told company officials to notify them when they had come up with a better offer.

Union leaders said they want more control over decisions affecting seniority and would like the present two-level pay system eliminated over two years.

Employees hired after April 1, 1987, are paid on a lower scale. Union members are hoping to regain some of the concessions lost during previous contract negotiations, union member's said.

Provo citizens voice concerns over Seven Peaks impact on air quality

STEVE TANNER

Provo citizens met Wednesday at a hearing held in the Utah County building to ask questions and voice concerns about Seven Peaks Resort's impact on air quality.

City Keller, assistant director of the Utah Bureau of Air Quality, conducted the hearing. He said Seven Peaks has applied for a permit to build a 2,400 capacity parking lot to service its proposed ski resort. "We are only issuing a permit as it refers to air quality," the Forest Service must also issue a permit, he said.

Provo Mayor, Joe Jenkins said Provo City recognizes that there is an air quality problem and is concerned how Seven Peaks will impact that problem.

"Air quality stinks and I want to know when we are going to do something about it," said Provo citizen, Kerry Strauss.

Seven Peaks has proposed several plans to mitigate the amount of air pollution that will be caused by the increase in traffic to the resort, Jenkins said. Sam Rushforth, BYU professor of botany and range science, said the Wasatch Front is an area that has already reached maximum levels of air pollution.

The Seven Peaks proposal will "exacerbate the problem of carbon monoxide pollution," and plans being made to reduce this increase in pollution are not adequate, he said.

Senate approves clean air bill

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The debate over tougher air pollution controls shifts to the House with Senate approval of a clean air bill that imposes new emission curbs on automobiles, factories and electric power plants.

The Senate voted 89-11 late Tuesday to approve a far-reaching bill aimed at reducing urban smog, toxic industrial chemical releases and acid rain pollution.

The House Energy and Commerce Committee was working behind closed doors today on the House version of the bill. A final committee vote is expected by the end of the week.

President Bush called the Senate action "a historic vote" that will "affect generations to come as we work to build a cleaner, safer America."

The last time either the Senate or House approved changes in federal clean air laws was 1977, despite growing concern in recent years about dirty air.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, who unsuccessfully sought to change federal clean air laws over the past decade, called the Senate bill "a tremendous victory" and a significant improvement

Proposed requirements for autos

- Tougher tailpipe emission requirements by 1995 cutting hydrocarbon releases 22 percent and nitrogen oxide emissions by 66 percent.
- Cleaner fuels for all automobiles in nine cities with the worst pollution. These cities being Los Angeles, Houston, New York, Milwaukee, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Hartford, Conn., San Diego and Chicago.
- Special canisters on auto fuel systems to reduce emissions during refueling.

over current air pollution requirements. "We can no longer delay. The American people want action. They demand action," Mitchell said.

The lopsided Senate vote capped weeks of jockeying among senators over the legislation, which was a compromise with the White House.

Senators from the Northeast and California sought to toughen auto pollution controls, but failed in narrow votes. Several attempts to cushion the Midwest from the high cost of acid rain controls also failed, as did an effort to help coal miners who could lose their jobs under new pollution requirements.

Many senators expressed concern over the bill's cost, estimated at about $21 billion a year when it takes full effect toward the end of the decade.

Mitchell acknowledged the new emission controls would be expensive to industry, but he argued "the costs of inaction will be higher than the cost of this bill."

Health experts estimate air pollution may account for 50,000 premature deaths every year and add $40 billion a year to health care costs, he said. But to many senators, particularly from the Midwest, the vote represented an agonizing choice between cleaner air and concern about the measure's impact on employment and electric bills back home.

Members of United Steel Workers of America Local 1654 picket Wednesday outside the Pacific States Steel Pipe Co. The union's contract with Pacific Steel expired Saturday. Production at the plant continued Tuesday and Wednesday with help brought in from outside the Provo plant.

Women's Conference centers on power

By SHAUNA PIERSON
Universe Staff Writer

This year's Women's Conference, held today and Friday, will focus on "The Power Within: To See Life Steadily and See It Whole," during a variety of sessions held on the BYU campus.

"More than 40 lectures, workshops, panel discussions and performances will be available during the two-day conference," said Carol Lynn Hawkins, conference director. "It is designed not only for women of all ages and in all situations, but for men as well."

BYU students, faculty and staff, and their spouses will be admitted free with current activity cards. Hawkins said classes vary in length from an hour to an hour and a half with sessions in the Ernest L. Wilkinson Center and other locations on campus to accommodate student's schedules.

"We were also concerned about excluding working men and women with a day conference so evening sessions were developed at no charge to avoid this," she said.

"Each hour of the conference will break down the main theme and define different areas of power," said Suzy McCune, conference program assistant. "The power to change, the power to love, the power from the past, the power to serve, the power to enrich and the power to be."

"We want to examine the power within each one of us to meet the challenges of life," Hawkins said.

Session topics include mother and daughter relationships, women as artists, self-esteem for children and adults, women in literature and folklore, providing aid for abuse victims, women in science, images of women in film and service and relationships with aging parents.

President Rex E. Lee will open the conference today at 9 a.m. in the Marriott Center. He will be followed by the keynote address, "Shipboard Surprises and Shoreline Gleanings," by Karen Lynn Davidson, former professor of English and director of BYU's Honors Program.

Tonight's fireside address, "Love is a Verb," will be given at 7:30 in the Marriott Center by Mary Ellen Edmunds, associate director of the Missionary Training Center. The closing address will be given Friday at 2 p.m. in the Marriott Center by Jutta Baum Busche, a native of Germany and the first matron of the Frankfurt LDS Temple.

"We have a mix of well qualified speakers for this conference," Hawkins said. "Some are academic, some are mothers strictly serving family and community."

FBI man honored for investigation into slayings of LDS missionaries

Associated Press

PENDLETON, Ore. — An FBI agent based in Pendleton has been honored by the agency's director and the Bolivian government for his role in an investigation into the slayings of two missionaries of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Mike McPheters was awarded the Bolivian National Medal of Honor for the May 1989 investigation into the Zarate Willka terrorist group, which is blamed for the missionary slayings and for the attempted assassination of former Secretary of State George Schultz.

Last week, as a follow-up to the Bolivian award, McPheters received a formal commendation from William Sessions, director of the FBI.

McPheters spent three weeks in Bolivia after learning May 2, 1989, that two young LDS men had been shot to death as they entered the courtyard to their apartment in a poverty-ridden area of La Paz.

McPheters, a former LDS missionary, volunteered to go to Bolivia because his son, Shad, a 1987 graduate of Pendleton High School, was serving as a church missionary in La Paz, Bolivia in a section known as Cochabamba.

McPheters said his son was a zone leader, supervising 16 other missionaries in the northernmost corner of Bolivia.

At one point during a series of attacks on churches and Americans, his son rode a motorcycle through the jungle to round up fellow missionaries.

He led them across the Mamore River into Brazil and "literally hid out" for three days until the violence subsided, McPheters said.

McPheters said the investigation was a great challenge because of the different culture, the weather, the 12,000-foot altitude and an ill-equipped Bolivian National Police force.

"The only big case they'd ever had was when terrorists tried to kill George Schultz," McPheters said. "They had one microscope that looked like it came from a high school biology class about 20 years ago. They didn't have cars and they didn't have many guns either."

McPheters said the FBI provided the necessary technical assistance.

He was one of five agents assigned to the case.

Two agents served as liaison between the Bolivian embassy and the Bolivian minister of the interior, who manage the national police.

One agent worked in ballistics and laboratory investigation, and another interrogated witnesses with the use of a polygraph.

McPheters, who speaks fluent Spanish, teamed with a Bolivian counterpart and worked the streets to construct a chronology of the crime.

"The Bolivian police already had gone through the crime scene, but he and I went through it with a fine-toothed comb and developed witnesses who saw and heard things," he said.

Additionally, McPheters, who served as an LDS missionary from 1963 to 1965 in Uruguay and Paraguay, worked with American officials of the LDS Church.

McPheters said that many Bolivians resented Americans in La Paz because of the U.S. push to eradicate cocaine.

Faculty asks President Lee questions

The enrollment ceiling and the use of university resources led the list of questions faculty members asked President Rex Lee during an informal session Wednesday afternoon.

Together they accounted for half the 24 questions raised. Faculty also inquired about funding, an academic master plan, proprietary rights, credit for returning students, the Motion Picture Studio investigation and the Supreme Court case President Lee has just argued.

In addition, one faculty member asked about a student chapel, and two asked for ways faculty members could respond to university concerns.

There will be a story in Friday's Daily Universe giving more details on the issues raised and how the president responded to them.

President Lee said he agreed to participate because he wanted the faculty to have the same opportunity to talk to him that he had earlier given the students.

Lithuania issue key in Soviet-US relations

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State James A. Baker III told Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze on Wednesday that how Moscow deals with the drive for independence in Lithuania holds "very important" consequences for superpower relations.

Baker's strong statement, at the conclusion of a 3½ hour session at the State Department at the opening of a new round of U.S.-Soviet talks, elicited a public assurance from the Shevardnadze that the Kremlin would find a peaceful solution in the Baltic Republic.

"Let me tell you very authoritatively and seriously I have no doubt we will be able to find a solution to that situation, that we will find a wise and fair solution," Shevardnadze said.

He added, without elaboration, that it would be in the interests of the Lithuanian people, the entire Soviet Union, Europe and peace.

At the conclusion of the first of three days of scheduled talks, Baker said Shevardnadze had brought a letter for President Bush from Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Baker declined to disclose any of the contents, saying that was up to Bush, who will meet with Shevardnadze at the White House on Friday morning. The two ministers also discussed nuclear missiles. They hope to agree on the extent of the limitations to be placed on nuclear-tipped cruise missiles in a treaty Bush and Gorbachev would like to sign at a summit meeting here in June.

SLC I-15 concrete removal starts Friday

SALT LAKE CITY — Removal of the failed synthetic concrete on northbound Interstate 15 will begin Friday and take about five weeks, the Utah Department of Transportation announced.

UDOT will supervise diamond-grinding operations that will remove the overlay. The work will be done one lane at a time and in sections of one mile in length each, Kim Morris, UDOT community relations director, said Tuesday.

The contractor will work around-the-clock, seven days a week, he said. Traffic will be restricted to two lanes during non-peak hours, but on weekdays between 5 a.m. and 9 a.m. there will be three lanes available for use, one of them being the outside emergency lane.

The on-ramp from eastbound I-215 to northbound I-15 will be closed for the duration of the repair project. The on-ramp from westbound I-215 to northbound I-15 will be reduced to one lane for the first week of the project, and may have to be closed completely for about one week at some later point in the work.

Insurance department's decision defended

SALT LAKE CITY — The state Insurance Department was within the scope of its authority when it prohibited insurance providers from discriminating against carriers of the AIDS virus, an attorney general's opinion said.

The opinion contradicted that of the Office of Legislative General Counsel, which had advised lawmakers that the administrative rule went beyond the statutory powers granted to the Insurance Department.

The Legislature repealed that administrative rule on the advice of the legislative lawyers by failing to reauthorize it in its general act reauthorizing all administrative rules.

But Francine Giani, press secretary for Gov. Norm Bangerter, said that based on the attorney general's opinion released Tuesday, the governor plans to meet with Insurance Commissioner Harold B. Yancey for the purpose of reinstating the rule.

Assistant Utah Attorney General John Clark said the attorney general's opinion on the insurance rule did not address the issue of whether the Legislature has the right to repeal administrative rules by failing to reauthorize them.

County commissioners reject master plan

PROVO — The Utah County Commission has rejected a new master plan that would have allowed 17,500 acres to be rezoned for development and intends to return the blueprint to the Planning Commission.

Commissioner Brent Morris on Wednesday said he would make a motion at next Monday's meeting to return the master plan with new proposed wording.

Of the 17,500 acres, most lies between the incorporated cities. The county commissioners said their proposed changes would occur in the text of some existing zones, primarily the agricultural A-1 zone.

Morris said a 30-day comment period elapse before the commission-proposed changes are adopted.

Morris said provisions of the current master plan can continue to provide Utah County with a rational development pattern that considers transportation, air quality, health and safety services, open space and quality of life.

Vocalist Sarah Vaughan dies of cancer

LOS ANGELES — Legendary jazz singer Sarah Vaughan, the "Divine One" renowned for her unusual range and flowing style peppered with flavors of be-bop and scat, died of cancer eight days after her 66th birthday.

Harold Levy, her manager and friend, said she died late Tuesday of lung cancer at her home in the Hidden Hills area of the west San Fernando Valley. She had been ill for nearly a year and was released from Cedars-Sinai Medical Center hours before her death.

"Sarah Vaughan was among the most powerful, influential and soulful voices of all time, a perfectionist with an astonishing vocal range and a genius for conveying emotion through her music," said Quincy Jones, who first worked with Vaughan in 1957 as the arranger on "Misty."

Some of her other memorable songs included "Broken-Hearted Melody," "Send in the Clowns," and "If You Could See Me Now."

Vaughan's voice, over which she had phenomenal control, had lovely tone and was true in pitch.

'Sweet tooth' boosts BYU business

Women buy more candy; men purchase bigger sizes

By HEATHER DUNFORD
Special to the Universe

During BYU's Education Week, the Sweet Shop in the BYU Bookstore sells enough fudge to put a student through college for four years, said a student who makes the fudge. Lori Ann White, a junior from Lake Oswego, Ore., majoring in elementary education said, "All these women are for Education Week just line up at the counter for fudge." The Sweet Shop, which has more than 150 bins of bulk candy, a variety of fudge, novelty candy and 75 different types of candy bars, sells the most candy from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. During this time, students are buying candy to snack on or just spending extra change from lunch, said Corey Arch, a sophomore from Richmond, Va., majoring in special education. Rhett Brereton, the candy buyer at the Bookstore, said, "Customers don't buy something from a bin or shelf that is full, but not from one that is half-way full." Because of this, the Sweet Shop tries to keep everything full as possible.

The Sweet Shop employees believe women buy more candy than men do. Girls buy more candy because they are always buying things for their boyfriends to eat. And, girls are sweeter," said Arch. Although women seem to buy more candy, men seem to buy candy in bigger quantities such as "jumbo size candy bars," Arch said.

The Sweet Shop sells the most candy during Easter, followed by Halloween, Christmas and Valentine's Day, Brereton said.

Arch said the Sweet Shop ran out of Valentine's Day candy at 10 a.m. on Valentine's Day this year. "When people found out that we didn't have any Valentine's Day candy left, they just started buying anything that was red," Arch said.

"We determine how much candy we will buy at a time by guessing. This past Valentine's Day, we sold more candy during the holiday than we ever have before," Brereton said.

"People come to the Sweet Shop and ask us when the holidays are because they see all the candy out early. This year we have had a lot of people asking us when Easter is," White said.

The most popular items right now at the Sweet Shop are sour patch kids, cinnamon bears and animal cookies, White said.

Utah Cancer Sumposium is this week; improved cancer care to be discussed

By TAMMY WILLIAMS
Universe Staff Writer

The fourth annual Utah Cancer Symposium, sponsored by the College of Nursing and the College of Continuing Education, will take place on Thursday and Friday in the Harmon Continuing Education Building.

This year's theme is "Improved Cancer Care," and the main focus will be on pain control. This year's symposium will place emphasis on areas of prevention and cancer care in the pediatric and young adult patient.

The symposium will feature Margo McCaffery, a specialist in the treatment of patients with pain. The conference consists of 25 sessions during the two days. McCaffery will speak on "Pain Control in Adults" and "Pain Control in Children."

Pain is a big issue in children and adults in both cancer and treatment said Elaine Sorensen, Chair of Continuing Education in the Nursing Department.

Cancer is becoming more prevalent in children. "When a child has cancer it affects the whole family," she said.

CONFERENCE

designed so that women with diverse backgrounds can come and learn from each other.

"Some people are coming for an academic experience, some are coming for a spiritual experience — the variety of speakers and topics will allow for any diverse interest."

Hawkins said one Friday session, "When You Must Baby Your Baby and Mother Your Mom," will be held in the ELWC Ballroom at 11 a.m. and will focus on the dual challenges faced by men and women dealing with both dependent children and aging parents.

Abuse is also a significant problem in our society, Hawkins said. "In order for survivors of abuse to heal, our support is necessary. To be supportive, we must not only examine abuse and our role as a supporter but also examine our personal attitudes about abuse," she said.

Three separate sessions will address this topic during the two-day conference. BYU social work professor Anne L. Horton will discuss "The Silent Survivor: Defining Abuse," which will be held today at 11 a.m. in 394-396 ELWC.

"Comforting the Victims," by Grethe Peterson, chair of the Utah Task Force on Sexual Abuse, will be held today at 1:30 p.m. in 394-396 ELWC. "What Can We Do? Aiding the Abuse Victim," by Tammy B. Heaton will be held today at 6 p.m. in 375 ELWC.

Other sessions will focus on self-esteem issues for both women and children.

Co-dependency and women will be the spotlight of "Loving Wisely," led by Salt Lake family therapist Mary Beth Raynes on Friday at 9 a.m. in the ELWC Ballroom.

Raynes said, "Often we become co-dependent, that is, more dependent on others' feelings and behavior to guide how we should act ... (rather) than on our own inner knowledge."

Anna-Liise Rinne, a Finnish pediatrician, will discuss values and motivations for service in her lecture, "If You Love Him, Why Not Serve Him?" to be held today at 11 a.m. in the ELWC Ballroom.

Rinne, who recently returned from Romania as a member of an LDS task force, will share her experiences while in Romania. "I will also share experiences from other missions, especially to the Polynesian Islands," she said.

In addition to the regular schedule, participants can also enjoy several optional events, including a low-cost "Y Be Fit" health and fitness evaluation, foreign films and several campus music and theater productions.

Trends in exercise wear colorful

By CHERYL A. KORTE
Universe Staff Writer

The trend in exercise wear includes fluorescent colors and varying lengths of stretch pants and cotton material, said a local exercise clothing distributor.

Tammie Gleave, an employee of Dance Works in Provo, said, "There's a lot of brights, especially this year."

Gleave said stretch pants come in three lengths: above-the-knee bike shorts, slightly longer crop pants and ankle-length stretch pants. Most people prefer cotton or nylon material because, "it's more comfortable and it absorbs sweat better."

The manager of Provo's Club Fitness, Kevin Dickerson, a 26-year-old senior from Pleasant Grove majoring in biology education, said he sees many exercisers wearing fluorescent outfits and biking shorts, called girdles.

"We've got some who are still hanging on to the bright neons," Dickerson said.

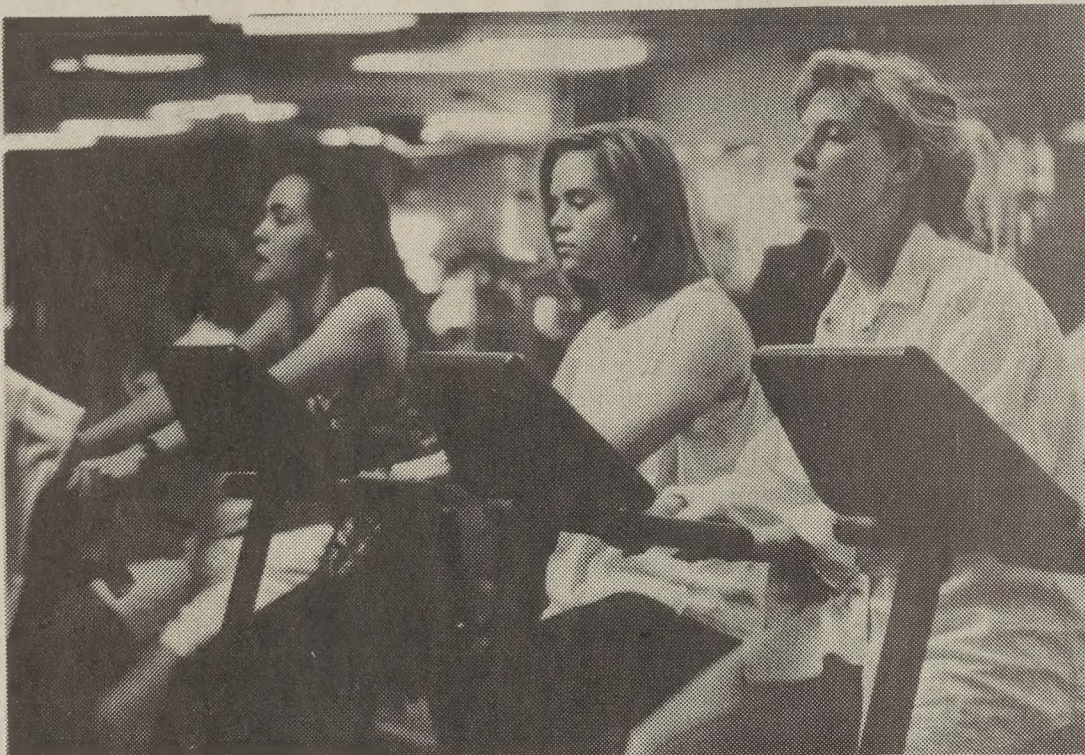

Dickerson said biking shorts are popular because "they keep the muscles warm and tight."

Also, he said physical therapists recommend that people with hip problems should wear something tight on their hips to prevent injury.

Tight-fitting clothing is also appropriate for working in weight rooms, Dickerson said.

"You wouldn't want things flapping around that can get caught in the machines."

Lisa Arbon, a BYUSA coordinator and University of California at Los Angeles modern dance graduate, said

Girls are riding exercise bikes at Club Fitness Tuesday because "they want to." The idea is to get into shape so they can wear the clothes they want.

form-fitting clothing is needed in dance classes to show the line and contours of the body.

As for color, Arbon said, the fluorescent may or may not be acceptable. She remembers "one instructor from New York who would only let us in class if we were wearing all black."

Shoes are also an important consideration when choosing exercise wear. Arbon said sturdy tennis shoes are a must for aerobics, due to the jumping involved.

Dickerson said aerobics instructors at the club recommend footwear for their students; the best styles being shoes specifically made for aerobic exercise.

An article by Sara Henry in Women's Sports & Fitness, March, 1990 said shoes have become specialized for specific uses including bicycling, aerobics, racket sports, running and hiking.

"Once upon a time there was the all-purpose sneaker," Henry said. Companies, realizing that people participate in different sports, have also made cross-training shoes which are intended for more broad uses.

Cajun, Creole music to be performed

By DAN COOK
Universe Staff Writer

BYU audiences will have a chance to stomp, hoot and holler to Cajun and Creole-inspired music tonight in the de Jong concert hall at 7:30.

Ida Guillory's accordion and vocals will lead her Bon Temps Zydeco Band as a part of the BYU Performing Arts Series.

Paul Duerden, BYU Concert Manager, said he heard Queen Ida (as she is called) and her band recently at a promoters' convention and was quite impressed.

"Within two or three numbers, she had the audience on their feet and rocking. It's deep South music, but there is really nothing to compare it to," he said.

Queen Ida was born and raised in Lake Charles, La., and hence, there are strong ties between her music and the unique French Cajun and Creole culture that evolved around the Mississippi Delta.

Queen Ida's music has been compared to the region's spicy, unorthodox cooking, a kind of stew of Jamaican reggae, country western, jazz, blues and rock and roll.

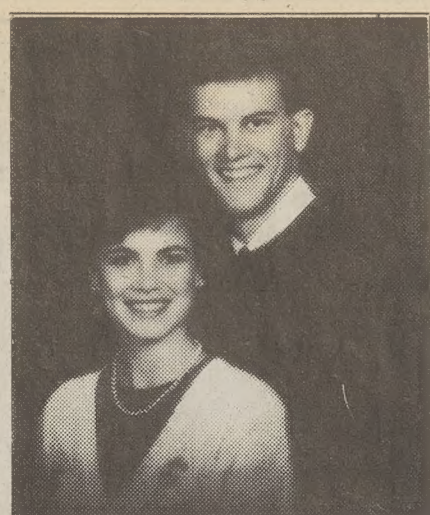

The Bon Temps Zydeco Band features fiddle, triangle, guitar, washboard, bass and drums.

The word "zydeco" evolved from the French word for snap bean, referring to Cajun music's snappy dance-based rhythms.

Queen Ida appears in approximately 200 performances a year at night clubs, concert halls, colleges and fairs.

She has also made appearances on Saturday Night Live, MTV and PBS. She has seven American-released albums and has won a Grammy Award.

Tickets are $7 for the BYU community and senior citizens and $9 for the general public. For more information, call the BYU Music Ticket Office at 378-7444.

Students dig up past at Camp Floyd

Site of largest military installation in U.S. prior to Civil War

By DAVID D. JENSEN
Universe Staff Writer

Students interested in digging up pieces of the past can participate in BYU's Field School of Archaeology excavation at Camp Floyd this spring.

Past finds include cannonball fragments, glass and ceramic ware, miscellaneous buckles, badges and buttons, and hundreds of clay tobacco pipes.

Some of the pipes were campaign promotions in the shape of the candidate's face, with the soldier's name or initials scratched into the surface.

One pipe reads, "Doc's." Another has the name of an Irish immigrant. Military records gave the height, hair color and career history of the man, said program director Dale Berge.

Mike Slaughter, Berge's research assistant, said Camp Floyd was the largest military installation in the United States prior to the Civil War.

According to Berge, about 3,500 troops sent by President Buchanan to put down the "Mormon Rebellion" were stationed at Camp Floyd from 1858 to 1861.

But instead of crushing Salt Lake City, as was feared, the soldiers became an economic salvation to the local people.

The army hired local carpenters, blacksmiths and masons and bought local lumber and agricultural products to build and maintain the camp, Berge said.

The camp originally consisted of 200 adobe-brick buildings to house the soldiers and provide services.

The site, located 20 miles west of Lehi, is privately owned and BYU has arranged with the owner to dig on the property, Berge said.

"It's a great experience to find things that haven't been seen for 130 years," said Cathleen Callister, a graduate student in anthropology. "You learn about the people and the way they lived."

Although the adobe buildings have all but disappeared, a difference in the soil allows excavators to locate walls and building sites and determine room sizes, Callister said.

Berge said 15 to 20 BYU students and four or five local volunteers usually participate in the project.

Half of the students are archaeology majors.

Also, more than 500 middle and junior high school students visit the digs during a semester on field trips.

Students interested in participating in the digs should register for Anthropology 455R spring term. Daily transportation is provided to and from the site. Variable credit is offered, and students can work from one to five days weekly.

Many people are wondering if Lindon, Utah really exists?

If you've ever asked yourself—"Does Lindon, Utah really exist?"—chances are you're not alone.

Recent expeditions have unsuccessfully tried to confirm the existence of Lindon, Utah.

Perhaps you have seen for yourself the Lindon exit just before the Orem exit on I-15 and pondered, "I wonder where it is?"

Perhaps you even ventured to take the Lindon exit only to ask yourself, "Did I miss it? Was it there? Did I blink too fast? Maybe it was all a figment of my imagination?"

Nevertheless, accounts still pour in that Lindon does exist.

Rumors have it that there's a small theatre in Lindon and you can see a play there called Stop Sounding Like a Woman every Friday, Saturday and Monday at 7:30 p.m.

It only costs four dollars for students with ID and it deals with two students in love, well, so they say.

According to the accounts, if you turn east onto 2000 North from State Street in Orem and then left on 200 East, you'll find the theatre within a mile.

If Lindon really exists, that is.

Trackster fulfills dream to run for BYU

By ANDY BOYCE
Universe Sports Writer

When Laura Zaugg was nine-years-old, she saw the 1976 Summer Olympics on television and had a dream to run in the Olympics. She hasn't made it to the Olympics, but she is fulfilling her dream.

Laura Zaugg, a 23-year-old senior from Clearfield, Utah, came to BYU to fulfill her dream. She said, "I had two dreams, I wanted to run track, and I wanted to run for BYU."

Zaugg first started competing in national track meets when she was 14-years-old. She said, "Track was always the thing to do while I was growing up, I liked all sports, but track was the sport I competed in seriously."

Zaugg has taken track seriously, specifically the heptathlon. She graduated from Clearfield High School in 1985 as the state champion and record holder in the 300 intermediate hurdles.

"I really don't have one specialty, it's my versatility that's special. That is why I love the heptathlon, because I'm competitive in all the events," she said.

The heptathlon includes the high jump, 55-meter hurdles, long jump, 800-meter run and the shot put.

BYU Womens' Track Coach Craig Poole said, "Laura is a great athlete which allows her to be very competitive in all the heptathlon events. She is also a true leader and example for our team."

At the Reebok Invitational at the University of Minnesota on Jan. 27, Zaugg set a new meet and field house record in winning the heptathlon. She won every event and set personal bests of 5-5 1/4 in the high jump and 8.82 seconds in the 55-meter dash. She scored 3,636 to erase the old record of 3,387.

She said, "I was really happy with how I performed in Minnesota. My best score previous to the Minnesota meet was 3,450."

Zaugg says practicing against good competition helps her to get better. "I run against people that are specialists in their events. They are only good at one event and they beat me pretty good, but that helps me to become better in that particular event," she said.

Zaugg took some time off after her sophomore year to serve a mission to Honduras. It was tough to leave because she had just missed qualifying for the national track meet to compete in the heptathlon during her sophomore season.

She said, "I was close to qualifying for the national meet, but I always wanted to be a missionary. It was tough for me to tell Coach Poole that I was leaving, but I knew that I would come home and continue competing in track."

However, it was tougher coming back and competing than Zaugg realized.

She said, "I was worried how I would fit in with the girls on the team and how competitive I would be. I also had some health problems and had a tough time getting back into track."

Brooke Stanton, a teammate said, "Laura is a great example and motivator, she is great and encourages everyone. It was great to get her back this year."

Since coming back, Zaugg has worked hard at improving in the heptathlon.

She feels faster and even more competitive. "My mission helped me to be more competitive because it taught me mental toughness and discipline. I have always been competitive, but now I run to win, not just to place in the top five."

Zaugg and her teammates have been winning.

They recently set a school record in the 4x400 relay at the Intermountain Games.

"I know that I can win the heptathlon at the High Country Athletic Conference Championships this year, and go to the nationals to compete with the best in the country," she said.

Zaugg is happy that she decided to come to BYU. She said, "I came to BYU because it had a good mix between academics and athletics. It has also given me the opportunity to compete on a national level. Coach Poole is great and I'm very happy; a dream come true."

Volleyball team loses road match to Anteaters

By MICHAEL J. WARD
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU men's volleyball team began their four-match road trip with another loss at UC-Irvine Wednesday night.

The Anteaters beat the Cougars 14-16, 16-17, 15-7, 15-12, and eliminated the Cougars' chance for a berth in the NCAA playoffs.

BYU coach Carl McGown said earlier this week, "The match (against Irvine) will be another measuring stick to see if we have made improvement."

BYU's Gunnar Lindstol led the Cougars in kills with 16, but he also had 10 errors for a hitting percentage of .136. He was benched in the second game and Warren Vanshalkwyk came in to add six kills, five errors and a hitting percentage of .050.

David Johnston had 14 kills for the Cougars at an average of .355 and 13 digs.

In the first game, the Anteaters took an early lead but a Shawn Patchell ace tied the game at 4-4. The lead changed several times until the score was tied at 10-10.

With Irvine up at 14-10, BYU's Scott Waddell served for three straight points to make it 14-13, and back row digs by Johnston and Skule Vagen brought the Cougars back to win the game at 16-14.

"The second game was a 50-minute marathon," said team spokesman, Jeff Ruffolo. The game was tied at 3-3, on Lindstol hitting and Patchell blocking.

With BYU up 6-3, Irvine took a timeout but the Cougars continued to pound the Anteaters and made it 11-3. Irvine had five unanswered points to make it 11-8, but the BYU defense stretched the lead back to 14-8. At 14-10, BYU called timeout but Irvine tied the game at 14-14. With BYU up at 16-15, Patchell had a service error that turned the ball and the momentum to Irvine who scored the next two points for the win.

In the third game, Irvine took a 7-1 lead. BYU's Colin House served an ace to make it 5-9, and Johnston followed with another to make it 6-9, but the Anteaters hit a .500 for the game to BYU's .250, to win at 15-7.

With Irvine up, 7-2, in the fourth game, House and Johnston "had some awesome blocking at the net," said Ruffolo. Irvine led at 11-7, but the Cougars scored five straight points to take the lead.

"Vanshalkwyk had a marvelous solo block to tie it at 11-11. That was inspirational," said Ruffolo. "He just stuffed it right back in the guy's face." A Johnston kill made it 12-11, but Irvine served the next three to take the match at 15-12.

NFL looks at expansion outside the U.S.

(AP) LONDON — NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue said the league will expand no later than 1993 — the first time the NFL has set a specific timetable for adding teams.

"Expansion is a very top priority, possibly by 1992, certainly by 1993," Tagliabue said Wednesday during a teleconference to discuss a summer preseason game in London between the Los Angeles Raiders and New Orleans Saints.

Tagliabue and former commissioner Pete Rozelle previously said expansion would take place two years after a new collective bargaining agreement had been signed with the NFL Players Association. The league and union have been without an agreement since 1987.

NFL spokesman Dick Maxwell, who attended the news conference in London, said the league would add four teams — either four at once, or two in one season and two more shortly thereafter.

Tagliabue said the NFL was concentrating on the U.S. for new franchises, but said cities in Mexico, Canada and Britain could be considered for expansion teams.

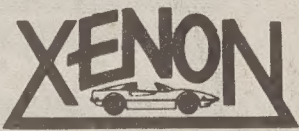

Asked about the possibility of an NFL franchise outside the U.S., Tagliabue said: "I could see that down the line. I think it's possible that it could be in this decade. That is a development that I do foresee."

NCAA modifies basketball rules

Associated Press

DENVER — Fouling a shooter attempting a 3-point shot will result in three free throws next season, the NCAA basketball rules committee has decided. There will also be a crackdown on player misconduct. The 3-point ruling is certain to further popularize long shots by giving teams the possibility of three points even if the shooter misses. But the NCAA decided against moving the 3-point line beyond its current distance of 19 feet, 9 inches. There had been some sentiment for pushing the line back to 20 feet, 6 inches, the line used in international play. Conferences will be allowed to experiment with the international line next season, however. "Why fool around with something that's been extremely successful?" asked Edward Steitz, secretary of the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee. "We never say never, but we have a great game. To me, the game has never been better." Steitz noted that shooting accuracy from 3-point range has fallen from 36.6 percent to 36.6 percent over the last three years, and that 30 games in this year's NCAA tournament were decided by five points or fewer. The National Association of Basketball Coaches last week said it would recommend that the line be moved back to 20-6 to correspond with the international line. Steitz predicted that no conferences would adopt the experimental 20-6 line, used in the Olympics and other international competition. "We had it as an experimental rule two years ago and we had no takers," he said. "I don't see many conferences opting to use it this time." New rules designed to control the conduct of players on the court call for technical fouls to be assessed for taunting or swearing at opponents. Suspension for his team's next game will be the penalty for taking part in a fight, and a second fight means suspension for the rest of the season. "The stuff that has been going on has been totally undesirable," Steitz said. "We just don't think this should be part of the college game." Coaches or players given two technical fouls will now be ejected from games, and the head coach will be ejected after three bench technicals have been called on his team. In an effort to speed up the game, players will be given two free throws instead of a 1-and-1 after the opposing team's 10th foul of each half and timeouts will be cut from four to three for each team in televised contests. "We want to minimize the time it takes to play the last few minutes of the ball game," Steitz said. "We felt this was a gradual approach toward doing that." The committee also decided to allow conferences to experiment with a "no-foul-out" rule. A player wouldn't be disqualified by a fifth foul, but each subsequent foul would award an opponent three chances to make two free throws. The rule replaces an experimental six-fouls-and-out rule used by three conferences this season, that Steitz said was dropped after a poll of coaches showed only 21 percent supported it. "I do think we'll have some conferences that will opt for the no-foul-out rule," he said. Other changes approved by the committee: — A player will be assessed a technical if he grasps or hangs on the rim unless he is fouled or is trying to avoid an obvious injury to himself or another player. — The 45-second clock will not be reset when a blocked shot goes out of bounds. — Only four players from each team may line up on the lane during free throws. — Teams will be allowed to use an NBA-style ball that has deeper channels to allow better handling and shooting.

Golf team heads for Arizona

By RODNEY ROBINSON
Universe Sports Writer

Coming off a first-place finish in the Peggy Kirk Bell Invitational in Florida, the BYU women's golf team heads for Phoenix Saturday to compete in the Lady Sun Devil golf tournament. The Lady Sun Devil golf tournament will host a 17-team field; six of the teams are in the top 10 in the country and three other teams are in the top 20.

Coach Gary Howard said, "If you go by the rankings, we'd finish 10th. I'd like to see us finish fifth. We'll have to play really good golf to finish any higher than eighth." Because the tourney boasts many good teams, the Cougars want to make a good showing so they have a chance to go to nationals. The top 17 teams go to nationals and BYU is not currently ranked in the top 20. BYU's Lachell Simmons said, "There are going to be a lot of good teams; we just want to shoot low scores." BYU took some time off after the Peggy Kirk Bell Invitational to rest and get caught up with school. "I'm a little concerned," said coach Howard. "We needed the rest but we've been out of competition for a while. I'm a little nervous right now because I don't know where we stand." BYU's Ruby Chico said the team's goal is to shoot 310 or better in the tourney. "It's going to be tough competition; we're aiming to play well and be in the top five." The main concern for the BYU golfers is to win the High Country Athletic Conference title. New Mexico State is the team BYU will have to beat to win the title. So far this season BYU has tied New Mexico State once and beat them once.

Grid star inducted into hall of fame

SAN JOSE, Calif.—Former BYU and Seattle Seahawks' running back Eric Lane was inducted into the California Community College Football Coaches Associations Hall of Fame on Saturday. Lane attended Hayward high and Chabot College before transferring to BYU, where he was the leading rusher in 1979 and 1980. The durable fullback gained 1,068 yards on 190 carries for a 5.6 average. He also scored 21 touchdowns on the ground and caught 82 passes for 904 yards and five touchdowns. A nephew of former Utah State and NFL running back MacArthur Lane, he played 97 games in seven NFL seasons. In 1984 he had 299 yards rushing and 11 receptions for 101 yards. Lane was special teams captain from 1983-86 and that unit led the NFL in kickoff coverage twice and was second once. In 1983, Seattle became only the second team in league history to lead in both kickoff and punt return.

Farm for handicapped seeks more land

By SUZANNE CONDIE
Universe Staff Writer

Shadowbrook Farm has been introducing handicapped kids to ducks, bunnies and horses for more than seven years, but zoning restrictions are forcing the facility to move. And this is causing the farm to reduce its services until new land is purchased, Shadowbrook's owner said.

Sherry Mainord said the Mapleton farm, formerly open to the public, has closed most of its petting zoo.

It is now only open during the week to participants of a handicapped 4-H unit and the farm's mostly high-school-aged Junior Leadership.

A few of the farm's attractions, such as guided pony rides and the goat section of the petting zoo, are still available to the public on Monday nights, she said.

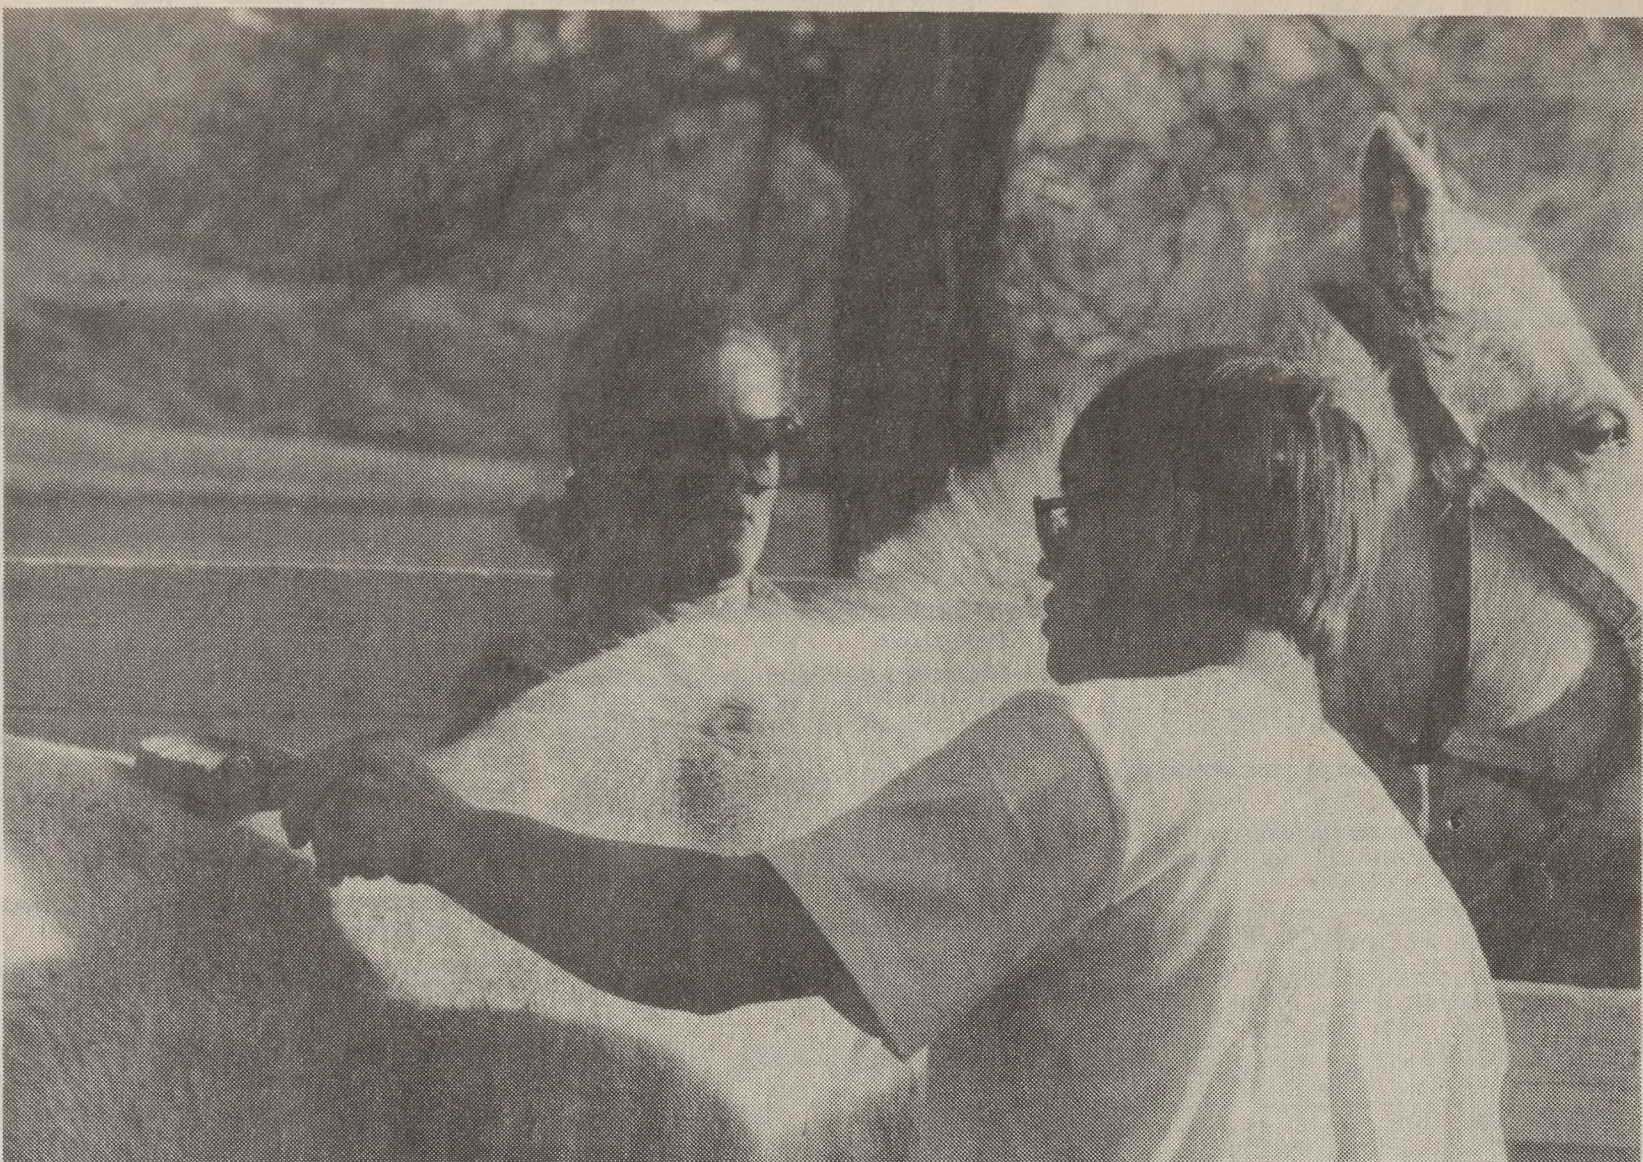

Shadowbrook was a private farm until 1983 when state budget cuts prohibited the State Training School, an institution for handicapped kids, from taking field trips outside the county.

"I felt really bad that the kids couldn't go to the zoo, so I asked the school to bring the kids up (to Shadowbrook)," she said. After going back to BYU to learn more about handicapped children's needs, she designed a therapeutic program for retarded, blind, learning disabled and other handicapped children for the 4-H program and the farm took off.

Mainord said farms are expensive, so she began opening the farm to the public for a fee. That was when the farm got too big, and zoning restrictions forced the facility to scale down its operations.

"We're in the process of acquiring more land so we can operate on a full time basis (again)," Mainord said.

She said she hopes to begin full-scale operations again in the fall. Until the farm reopens, no volunteers are needed to help run Shadowbrook.

"We have a lot of BYU students here helping us with the newborn animals in the spring, which need individual handling so they can get used to people and so they won't be afraid of the kids," she said. But since the farm doesn't have as many animals now, volunteers aren't needed.

Mainord said the farm's emphasis is on teaching the children to accept group and individual responsibility and to learn to live with disabilities. "We don't talk about handicaps here. If a child is in a wheelchair (and his job is to feed the horses) we put the feed on his legs and the horses feed out of his lap," she said.

"We teach that there are hundreds of ways to get a job done" and nearly anything can be accomplished regardless of a child's handicap, she said.

Mainord said most of the children in the program go to Oakridge School in Provo.
